SURREALIST "SERMONS" ON EXHIBIT AT USD

SAN DIEGO, Calif.--The surrealistic works of Patrick Nidorf are on exhibit for the month of November at the University of San Diego library.

The artist, an Augustinian priest, expresses through his works his philosophy on the condition of man--each are in effect sermons. He says, "A sermon can't, but perhaps a painting can convince people that they will always remain creatures who can really only love with their heart and not their body."

He adds, "And that is what my paintings are all about: love. So the message is sometimes too strong, and the paintings cry too loudly; sorry there, but I'm painting for people."

Father Nidorf was born in Phoenix, Arizona; he entered the Order of St. Augustine and was ordained a priest in 1960. He has exhibited in Philadelphia, Washington, D.C., Denver and throughout Southern California.
